

Client: private
Program: single-family house extension
Surface: 27 m2
Phase: execution design
Execution: 2015-2016

The project consists out of the 1:1 translation of the clients' wishes into architectural elements: concrete walls - large windows - a terrace.

Exposed cork insulates the walls, reflective glass protects from over-heating, and the finishing of the floors is a mere sanding of the structural concrete.

Combined with a rigorously simple design, this economy of means enabled to build a generous space on a humble budget. The extension updates the 1930's townhouse and functions as the centre for the young family's daily life.
